On average, we spend 80-90% of our lives indoors - and many of our homes are filled with dust mites, pollen, animal allergens, bacteria, chemicals, smoke, unwanted particles and bad smells. And even if we clean and air out, it's not always enough.

According to the Danish Environmental Protection Agency, this can result in an unhealthy indoor climate and, among other things, lead to asthma, allergies and other health problems such as fatigue, headaches and difficulty concentrating. Therefore, the advice from the Danish Environmental Protection Agency is that you keep an eye on the indoor climate in your home so that it does not disturb your health. The Thermex Puremex air purifier checks the air quality and ensures a healthy indoor climate. One unit covers up to 25 m2
