Turn on and off the light in your living room together with the other lights in the kitchen

Have you also thought that it would be good if the light in the hallway did not have to be switched on separately, but that it was switched on together with the other lights in the kitchen. Now Thermex has created a module that makes this possible. The Thermex Hood Light Link is connected to the light that you want the hood to light up together with. The module then sends a wireless signal to the Thermex receptacle and switches on the light. You still have the option of controlling the light on the hood, via the hood's normal operation or remote control, if the hood has one.
